Educational Growth for Sonographers

Posted by besamartini - 2012/12/04 11:57

_____

I am looking for Masters online but I haven't been able to find, which Masters is the best for Sonographers?

==========

Re: Online Masters for Sonographers

Posted by VickyPhillips - 2012/12/04 17:05

_____

Hi BeSamara,

We don't have any online master's in sonography in our database at GetEducated.

I am doing an extended search for you for some 100% online programs for you BUT as this field requires supervised experience and professional medical certification I am not optimistic that there is any 100% option in this career area at the masters degree program level.

There are associates and bachelors in medical imaging for working professionals employed in health facilities.

I did find that Mountain State University used to offer online associates, bachelors and certificates in sonography but they are no longer admitting students. SEE:
http://www.mountainstate.edu/academics/health-sciences/diagnostic-medical-sonography/index.aspx

There are many levels of medical certification for different types of sonography and for different educational levels for radiology practitioners.

Can you tell use your current eduction degree level; if you have any credentials or certifications at all now in the area of medical imaging, radiology or sonography; where do you live and work -- what country and state?

If you can give us more details we will try and find an online degree that may match your needs.

All the best
Vicky

besamartini wrote:
I am looking for Masters online but I haven't been able to find, which Masters is the best for Sonographers?

==========